 Che cos'è uno stereotipo
 Una produzione di gruppo
 L'uso del termine nelle scienze sociali (Lippmann, 1922)
 Il nostro rapporto con la realtà esterna è mediato da immagini
 Immagini sociali come scorciatoie cognitive, condivise con il gruppo di cui facciamo parte
 Euristiche e sistemi "a risorse limitate"
 Generalizzazioni, strumenti di conoscenza semplificati e preconfezionati
 Spiegazioni semplici di realtà complesse, spiegazioni biologiche di fatti sociali
 Forme di "non conoscenza" o cecità sociale
 Gli stereotipi rafforzano l'identità chi chi stigmatizza e di chi è stigmatizzato
 Come funzionano gli stereotipi?
 Si costruisce un legame tra una presunta caratteristica del gruppo e la biologia o l'identità culturale (che si presume immobile) del gruppo
 Dopo si generalizza l'attribuzione a tutti i membri del gruppo
 Lo stereotipo è il principale fenomeno di "economia cognitiva" e di "errore fondamentale di attribuzione" studiato dalla psicologia
